To Whom It May Concern:

It is my absolute pleasure to recommend Teale Failla to your school for graduate study. I've known Teale in excess of 3 years. I first met her when she was a student of mine at the Connecticut School of Broadcasting. I taught her broadcast production techniques and digital audio editing. Teale took to this technology like a duck takes to water. She impressed me with her enthusiasm and her drive to advance. Teale's level of intelligence and her motivation to learn, coupled with her outstanding personality, made teaching her a genuine pleasure. She always asked the right questions at the right time, and I even found myself almost faltering to stay a step ahead of her.

After graduating CSB, Teale continued to express an interest in advancing and honing her skills. To this end, I personally invited her to our teaching studios here at NYU to tutor her on a more advanced platform of digital audio editing and she once again impressed me.

In subsequent communications with Teale, my appreciation for her as a motivated individual with a drive to succeed was reaffirmed when, in a relatively short amount of time, she became employed at Instructional Television, the TV facilities for the Archdiocese of New York. It doesn't surprise me at all to know that Teale has moved up their technical ladder faster and more easily than most.

Teale's grasp of concepts is excellent. She always managed to ask me questions that demonstrated to me her ability to think ahead and reason things out in a logical and intelligent way.

I have no doubt of Teale's abilities to be a superior student and would consider it a shame if she were denied the opportunity to continue to feed her intellect. I whole-heartedly recommend her to your graduate program.

I welcome questions from you concerning Teale. Please feel free to give me a call here at NYU or to email me. My information is above.

Most sincerely yours,

Don Neumuller
