

Re: Recommendation for Teale Failla

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to recommend Teale Failla for her future endeavors in graduate school or any profession she pursues. Teale came to Sterling Publishing as a freelance digital asset archivist in our greatest time of need. In mere six months, Teale sorted, queried and documented over 500 titles (or 3TB) worth of book publishing digital assets. She gave us a path forward in rethinking our digital preservation strategy. It should come as no surprise, the team with whom Teale worked is impressed by her quality of work.

Teale's attention to detail, her drive to learn and how to perform tasks correctly as required by the job surpassed many of our book publishing colleagues. Her rich technical experience in filmmaking and AV digital preservation gave her insights to query relevant questions, which in return, enables her to communicate effectively new solutions.

Lastly, Teale demonstrated leadership qualities in problem solving and made recommendations to Sterling's on-going digital asset challenge. Without reservation, I highly recommend Teale for any of her future endeavors. Please do not hesitate to contact me to provide you with any further information regarding Teale Failla.

Sincerely yours,

Gavin Aghamore
